The Daily Press.

HONGKONG, NOVEMBER 6th, 1876.

The Shanghai papers last received furnish some further information about the future of the Shanghai and Woosung railway. The Daily News states that the agreement concluded between Mr. MAYNE and the Authorities at Nanking provides for the working of the line by the existing Company for a certain period under regulations which are to be framed as soon as possible. The Chinese Government is eventually to acquire possession of the line by purchase. The News has received no further details of the arrangement. The Courier publishes a report which is current in Nanking on the subject, and which states that the line is to be worked for one year by its present proprietors. At the expiration of that date the Nanking Government is to become its possessor in return for the payment of 200,000 taels. It is then to be turned over to the China Merchants' Company. This rumour is confirmed by others which have been circulated as to the ultimate fate of the line. We regret that the line is to be sold for reasons already stated, but this regret is modified slightly by the fact that the projectors of the enterprise are to be allowed to work it for twelve months. This arrangement will at any rate afford an opportunity of getting the line into good working order and showing that it can be made to pay expenses. But its purchase by the Chinese Government shows very plainly the inherent dislike entertained on the part of Chinese officials to foreigners holding or conducting any public work in China. They hate railways and all innovations of the sort, but if they cannot be avoided, then the foreigners shall not be allowed to make profit out of them. Unfortunately, however, this is not all or the worst in connection with the acquisition of the railway. It is as likely as not to bar the way to any future development of a system of railways, unless, indeed, the one or two vigorous reforms in the Government become favourably disposed towards the innovation.

A REBELLION is reported to have broken out in Japan. The Nagasaki Correspondent Press, in an extra issued on the 29th ultimo, states that a rebellion has occurred at Kumamoto. The Governor has been killed, the town burned, and affairs are said to wear a serious aspect. It is, however, most probable that the disturbance is only local, as no mention is made of its spreading. It is, of course, impossible to imagine the origin of the outbreak without further information, more especially as it would seem to be confined to a district. There are some few burning questions in the land of the Rising Sun at the present time, but though they have excited a good deal of public attention, they have not been warmly discussed in the native Press, it is very improbable that they would lead to any insurrection. A representative assembly has been vigorously agitated for some time past, and the Press prosecutions have proceeded with great severity, giving rise, perhaps, to some discontent, but there is no reason to think that the people generally are disposed to the Mikado's Government, which has done much for them and granted them so many privileges. All true friends of Japan will join in hoping that the rumoured revolt will prove to be nothing more than a mere local disorder which may be speedily allayed. What Japan requires to ensure her future progress is peace, both at home and abroad, and we earnestly trust she will long continue to enjoy it.

The latest telegrams received from home are of an ominous character. The cloud in the East, so far from dissipating, seems to be rapidly deepening, and it would not surprise us to hear, at any moment, that the long-threatened storm had burst upon Europe. The Porte's offer of a six months' armistice has been refused by Russia; an alliance between that Power and Austria is reported to be imminent; a Russian national loan of 300,000,000 roubles has been decided at Livadia; and four thousand Cossacks have joined the Servians, whilst more are to follow. Taken in conjunction, these circumstances make it appear very much as though the St. Petersburg Government had at last made up its mind for the last great blow. During the months since the war has been progressing that Government has had an opportunity of getting ready for a struggle, and it would not be surprising if it were now ready to strike. The prospect of Bulgaria committed by the Turks will certainly deprive them of the sympathy of civilised Europe, in the event of Russia declaring war against the Serbs. The British Government is, of course, on its guard, and watchfully taking note of events. What action it will take in the event of the Czar intervening in the conflict it is difficult to foretell. It has hitherto upheld the Moslems, but the question is whether it is advisable to propitiate any longer. Surely the matter could be better negotiated by the great Powers without resorting to hostilities, which, once commenced, may kindle all European empires of war. Serious, indeed, are the responsibilities resting on the men who guide the foreign policy of Great Britain.

in at this critical juncture. It is devoutly to be hoped Lord Darnley will prove equal to the emergency.

It is notified in Saturday's Gazette, that Mr. John Horne, H.B. Consul, has reported to the Secretary of State his resignation of the charge of the Russian Consulate.

The California contains a telegram from Shanghai, dated September 28th, which states:—The Chinese Government has been ordered to take immediate steps to suppress the family of Mr. McGarry, who was murdered. This is a sample of how names of places and people are perverted in translation. But even American newspapers would have known poor McGarry's name by this time, after all the stir his untimely death has created.
